

Still Time to Enroll At Trade-Tech School

It's not too late to register for summer classes in both the day and evening programs at Los Angeles Trade-Technical College, according to the college's registration officials.

Registration at the college, which is conducted daily from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. in the Guidance Center, will continue until all summer classes are filled, and there are no tuition fees for any classes because the college is public supported.

Trade-Tech, one of the seven Los Angeles public junior colleges, offers a wide variety of courses in technical and semi-professional vocational education in its summer program.

Day school classes this summer include subjects taught in the college's departments of academic, aircraft, apparel, art, automotive, building trades, cosmetology, culinary arts, drafting, electrical, electronics, metal trades, and printing.

Evening classes, which last usually from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m., will be given in library science, dry cleaning, fashion design, dressmaking, men's tailoring, power sewing, sign painting, and technical illustration.

Additional evening classes offered are automotive repair, brickmasonry, piano tuning, sheet metal, building trades, cosmetology, drafting, electrical technology, and printing.

Registration for any of the day or evening classes is held in the college's Guidance Center, located in the east wing of the Administration Building at 400 West Washington Blvd. between Flower and Grand Streets in downtown Los Angeles.

Additional information on summer day and evening classes and registration procedures can be obtained by calling the Guidance Center at RI 9-7021, Ext. 220

— Letters to the Editor —

To the Editor:
For the past 25 years, emphasis has been placed on education, training and avocation outlets in our prison programs. Progress has been notable, as was indicated at our recent graduation exercises when 23 men and eight women received high school diplomas, and five women graduated from grade school. However, we have discovered that supplying needs in these areas is not sufficient to insure the individual will not return. He or she must be taught how to apply these skills and otherwise retain identity with the community.

Consequently, the Self-Improvement Group program, usually referred to as SIG, started at Terminal Island in May of this year. SIG is designed to bridge the gap between the institution and the "free" community. We enlist the aid of interested, public-spirited people by inviting them into the institution as members of panels to discuss subject matter and share experiences with these inmates in attendance at the meeting. Topics for discussion are chosen by the inmates, and meetings are open to the general population, with informality setting the tone. Discussion periods permit, stimulate, and encourage exchange of thoughts and ideas. Thus, identity and acceptance of the inmate by the community is encouraged, other institution programs are enhanced, and, finally, the inmates in attendance benefit from the subject matter.

Between the two divisions, Merely telephone Terminal 3-5244, Monday through Friday, between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m., and arrangements will be made for you to visit.

R. W. May, Warden

To All Law Enforcement Officials:
Endurance is a test of greatness. For our Nation, the test began 186 years ago in Philadelphia when 56 American patriots signed the Declaration of Independence. From that historic moment on, the bells of freedom in our land have rung loud and clear—a triumphant message to a troubled world that America is indeed a beacon of hope for oppressed, freedom-loving people.

On the anniversary of that auspicious occasion we should give humble thanks to God for the spiritual heritage won by these men of destiny. Our freedom, prosperity, and stature as a world power are attestations to their far-reaching efforts. We should rededicate ourselves to the constant support and eternal preservation of the self-evident truths which were so dear to them.

Unfortunately, in some circles today the apologetic approach to patriotism is becoming fashionable. The faith and principles which withstood the ravages of wars, subversion and crime over the years are almost passe. Any exhibitions of national pride and reverence for the American flag are merely by rote. The burning zeal of patriotism which was in the hearts of the Men of '76 in many instances has turned to selfishness, apathy, and indulgence.

There was no diluted patriotism at Independence Hall; nor were there any combat "turncoats" at Valley Forge. These are latter-day by-products of decadent thinking. They represent a compromise of the moral and spiritual issues so vital to our survival. There can be no compromise where the cause of freedom is concerned.

Our history is replete with the names of patriots who paid the supreme sacrifice in winning and protecting our priceless heritage. These were men of action—men whose extraordinary deeds bespoke their belief in a Nation conceived in liberty and dedicated to the equality of all men. Today, perhaps as never before, America has need for doers of extraordinary deeds, men and women with the moral strength and courage of our fore fathers. The smoldering embers of patriotism should be fanned into a flaming spirit of loyalty so that the whole world will know Americans still stand, fight and die for the dignity of man.
